

Abstract

Disclosed is a method for heating a roller used in the production and/or finishing of a web of material, particularly a paper web or paperboard web, during which the roller is heated from the outside by a heated gas. Also disclosed is a corresponding heating device.